Highway 42 to Downtown Madison

Heading inland, the scenery shifts from lakes to lush farmland and lazy rivers. I follow the Wisconsin River for a stretch and stop in Sauk City for lunch. A tiny roadside café served up a classic burger and fries—simple, hearty, and exactly what I needed. Locals were friendly, and the vibe was warm and timeless.

Madison Downtown

The downtown Madison isthmus, a small strip of land nestled between Lakes Mendota and Monona, is home to various crowd-pleasing sights, one-of-a-kind restaurants, and unique local events that have put Madison on the map for many a Wisconsin traveler.

The final leg toward Madison is lined with green bluffs and rural beauty, the kind that makes you slow down just to soak it all in. Arriving in downtown Madison as the afternoon sun dips low, I park near Lake Monona and watched the city skyline shimmer on the water.

Highway 42 may not be the fastest way, but it's certainly the most beautiful. This ride was less about the destination and more about the journey—every curve, every small-town stop, every breath of Wisconsin air.

My favorite ride in Wisconsin by Tym W.

My Journal – Wisconsin Highway 42 to Madison

There's something magical about a crisp Wisconsin morning, especially when it starts with the hum of a Honda Hawk and the open road ahead. I ususally set out early, the sun just starting to cast golden light over the rolling hills of Door County. Highway 42 welcomes me with its winding curves, rustic barns, and tree canopies.

The road hugs the Lake Michigan shoreline, offering breathtaking glimpses of the shimmering blue water through the trees. Many times stop briefly near Sturgeon Bay to take in the views and the stillness of the early hours — a perfect beginning to a soul-refreshing ride.

As I continued south, the route twists through quaint little towns like Forestville and Algoma. Sometimes I take a short detour near the Kewaunee River, where I sit by the banks and listened to the gentle flow of water. Later, I roll into Two Rivers and enjoyed a lakeside coffee, watching boats move inand out of the harbor.

Engelhart Motorsports:

Where Passion, Precision, and People Make the Difference

In the heart of Madison, Wisconsin, lies more than just a motorsports dealership—it's a legacy. For over 50 years, Engelhart Motorsports has served Wisconsin riders with a level of expertise and commitment that few can match. While the showroom is filled with iconic brands like Can-Am, Polaris, Honda, Indian, Yamaha, and Royal Enfield, the real engine behind Engelhart's success is something far less visible but infinitely more valuable: its people.

Ride Like Never Before.

A Half-Century of Service—and Still Shifting Gears

From the earliest days, Engelhart Motorsports was built on a simple but powerful promise: deliver the best service in the state, and treat every customer's machine like it's our own. That commitment has carried the dealership through generations of riders, evolving with the industry while never compromising on what matters most—trust, service, and skill.

In a world where quick turnarounds often replace true craftsmanship, Engelhart stands apart. Our team of factory-certified technicians represents the best in the business, with credentials that span every major brand we sell. But what makes them exceptional isn't just the training—they're riders themselves. They understand the joy of a weekend trail ride, the thrill of the open highway, and the frustration of a machine that's not quite right. That firsthand passion translates into care that's more than technical—it's personal.

The Engelhart Difference

Running one of Wisconsin's most diverse service departments isn't easy. It takes ongoing investment, not just in the latest tools and technologies, but in people. Keeping our technicians trained and supported is a year-round effort. From certification courses to brand-specific updates, our team is constantly learning, growing, and adapting—because that's what our customers deserve.

But training is only part of the equation. Happy, motivated technicians do better work. That's why we focus just as much on creating a workplace culture where our staff can thrive. When a technician loves what they do, it shows in every oil change, every rebuild, and every test ride. That pride is something you can't fake—and at Engelhart, it's everywhere.

MoreThan Machines

Whether you're coming in for a new side-by-side, a parts order, or a full engine rebuild, our goal is always the same: to put the customer first. From the moment you call, walk in, or book a service online, our entire team is focused on delivering a seamless experience — built on honesty, clear communication, and follow-through.

Because at Engelhart, we understand something that many dealerships overlook: the real value of a dealership isn't just the brands on the floor. It's the people behind the counter, behind the parts desk, and in the service bays.

I will put our customers first—always listening, communicating clearly, and treating every machine that enters our shop with the care and respect it deserves.

A CUSTOMER VIEW

THINGS WE LOVE ABOUT ENGELHART MOTORSPORTS

The Gold Wing and the Road to Peace

<image>

A few weeks ago, a longtime customer—let's call him Dusty—walked into our service department, defeated. Dusty has been part of the Engelhart family for years, a loyal rider with a deep connection to his machine. This time was different. His Gold Wing had broken down just days before he was set to leave on a cross-country journey—a trip not just about the miles, but about healing, reflection, and rediscovery. Dusty wasn't just chasing pavement—he was chasing peace of mind.

He told us quietly, "This trip is about getting back in touch with myself. I need this." And our team heard him—loud and clear.

The service staff didn't just see a repair order; they saw a mission. Within the hour, we had a truck out to pick up the Gold Wing, and by the end of the day, our technicians were deep into diagnostics. Parts were hard to find — but our parts team worked late into the night, calling suppliers, pulling strings, and getting what we needed shipped overnight. Our techs stayed after hours. Not because they were asked to, but because they understood what this ride meant. They weren't just fixing a bike—they were restoring a rider's spirit. Every bolt turned, every adjustment made, was fueled by passion and empathy. And by the following evening, that Gold Wing was road-ready, waiting for Dusty to reclaim his journey.

When he came to pick it up, he got choked up. Not over the repair—but over the fact that someone cared enough to make sure it happened. That's the Engelhart difference.

This story is a reminder to all of us: we're not just in the business of motorsports—we're in the business of restoration of helping riders reconnect with themselves through the machines they love. That's what makes our work matter.

Customer Review – By Anna K.

For starters, there is a reason why Engelhart has a Excellent service and communication from beginning to end. We shopped at multiple facilities and found that Brady and team were outstanding folks to work with and we finalized our experience with Engelhart in Madison. We're pleased and so excited to get the best adventures out of our newest ride this summer and in the future. This is my dream bike!
